

Ekanto Ghosh

Former Deputy Director, InfoEdge Centre for Entrepreneurship, Ashoka University

Rhodes Trust Selector

ekanto.ghosh@gmail.com

2/1/2026

To Whom It May Concern,

I am delighted to write this letter in support of Ms. Ariana Agarwal, with whom I have had the opportunity to collaborate as a co-author on research examining youth-led models of educational reintegration and community-based social intervention. In my capacity as a former faculty member at Ashoka University and a Rhodes Trust selector, I have worked with many promising young leaders; Ariana stands out for her rare ability to translate grassroots action into rigorous research and policy-relevant insight.

Through her leadership of Project Rang, Ariana has developed a replicable model addressing educational exclusion and systemic child exploitation among children in vulnerable communities. What distinguishes her work is not only the scale of implementation-reaching over 35,550 lives through rescue support, reintegration, and welfare linkage-but the deliberate effort to document the mechanics of exploitation through a research-oriented lens.

The model's documented impact has been consolidated into 5 analytical reports and 12 detailed case studies, examining the specific barriers to school reintegration and the community-level drivers of child labor and exploitation. It is rare to see a young researcher demonstrate such methodological discipline while navigating the ethical sensitivities of documenting the lived experiences of rescued children. I am confident that her work will continue contributing to meaningful advancements in children's rights and youth-led development innovation. I offer my strongest recommendation for Ariana Agarwal and wholeheartedly support her candidature for opportunities recognizing leadership, scholarship, and social impact.

Sincerely,

Rhodes Trust Selector

Former Professor, Ashoka University